Jane Campion requests her film be withdrawn from apartheid Israel's Jerusalem Film Festival

Last week PSNA congratulated New Zealand film director Jane Campion on her request for her debut film "Sweetie" to be withdrawn from apartheid Israel's Jerusalem Film Festival.

The announcement was made by PACBI (Palestinian Campaign for the Academic and Cultural Boycott of Israel) in this release:

<https://bdsmovement.net/jerusalem-film-festival-2023>

PSNA has been working with PACBI on appeals to film directors at the festival and we are delighted to have an esteemed New Zealand director join at least four other international film directors in requesting their films be withdrawn from the Festival which is partnered with the Israeli Ministry of Culture.

This is a moment of pride for Aotearoa New Zealand – similar to the pride felt when New Zealand entertainer Lorde cancelled a scheduled concert in Israel in 2018.

At a time when Palestinians are suffering immeasurably under the most fanatical, openly racist Israeli government ever, this solidarity action will be deeply appreciated by Palestinians everywhere.

These film directors are taking action where governments, New Zealand included, have failed morally and politically, again and again and again, to hold Israel accountable for its crimes against the Palestinian people.

This is similar to the fight against apartheid in South Africa in the 1970s and 1980s when it was civil society organisations around the world, and in New Zealand, which led the anti-apartheid struggle outside South Africa while western governments either colluded with the regime or looked the other way.

Something you can do right now with a few clicks...

Send a letter of congratulations to Jane Campion. You can write your own letter or copy and paste this letter and email it to Jane's agent Kate Richter kate.richter@hlamgt.com.au

Kia ora Jane,

Thank you Jane Campion

Thank you for making me proud to be a New Zealander. Your request to have your film withdrawn from the Jerusalem Film Festival is encouraging and inspiring. So many other film directors are too nervous to challenge Israel for fear of false smears of anti-semitism but you have taken a principled position. I applaud you for doing so.

This is a moment of pride for Aotearoa New Zealand – similar to the pride we felt when New Zealand entertainer Lorde cancelled a scheduled concert in Israel in 2018.

The Jerusalem Film Festival is partnered with the apartheid Israel Ministry of Culture. It is part of Israel's apartheid establishment. Just as we protested and boycotted apartheid South Africa last century, we must challenge apartheid Israel in the same way this century.

We must stand up for human rights everywhere and not give apartheid Israel a free pass to abuse Palestinians.

Thank you again Jane Campion.

A major protest
Filmed largely by Palestinian film-makers (the director was denied entry into Gaza) during the 2019 Great March for Return. The film covers the history of Gaza, including archival footage. Scenes display the brutality of the Israeli military and the Palestinians' courageous resistance.

Cartoon in the Sydney Morning Herald with Netanyahu in the driver's seat...

The cost of fighting the cultural boycott of apartheid Israel

Back in the 1980s international entertainers were lured to apartheid South Africa's "Sun City" – a huge, lavish entertainment centre in one of South Africa's bantustans – with lucrative appearance fees as the white regime fought the entertainment boycott of Apartheid South Africa. Entertainers responded with the song "Ain't gonna play Sun City".

New Zealand entertainer Lorde cancelled a show in Israel in 2018 in solidarity with the Palestinian struggle

Today apartheid Israel is fighting a similar boycott as entertainers shun playing or performing in the racist state – despite huge appearance fees. Here is an excerpt from PACBI's Samir Eskanda's piece on Jacobin. (PACBI is the Palestinian Academic and Cultural Boycott of Israel)

Israeli and international media have long reported on the unusually high fees that Israeli promoters routinely offer, reflecting concerns about a "silent boycott" that stretch back years. According to the cultural correspondent of a major Israeli news outlet, international artists performing in the country "get much more money than in any other place in the world."

David Caspi, a former communications sergeant for the Israeli military, has explained how Israeli promoters now pay "more than double the usual artist fee." Caspi quotes a cofounder of Live Nation Israel, the country's leading concert firm, who talks about a constant struggle to defeat the advocates of a cultural boycott: "Our war against them is daily."

Canadian-Israeli billionaire Sylvan Adams reportedly paid Madonna a million dollars to perform in Tel Aviv to contribute to the "strengthening of Israel's positive branding in the world." His late father, Marcel Adams, previously helped to finance Israeli performances of several international artists including Leonard Cohen.

Israeli government ministers and diplomats stationed around the world are also directly involved in this large-scale art-washing operation. When Radiohead ignored Palestinian appeals and performed in Tel Aviv, Israel's strategic affairs minister Gilad Erdan, who was leading Israel's anti-BDS efforts, told CNN "we salute Radiohead."

Israeli embassies all over the world praised the performances by Radiohead and Nick Cave, crossing the Palestinian picket line, as groups like Artists for Palestine UK had predicted. An Israeli foreign ministry spokesperson declared "bravo Nick Cave." The promoter of Radiohead's concert secured a permit for the venue after presenting the show as a victory for Israeli propaganda efforts. The Israeli foreign ministry itself gave the OK.

Before Lana Del Rey cancelled her performance at Israel's Meteor festival in 2018, the Israeli government's anti-BDS app was directing its supporters to comment on her social media posts. Del Rey was one of twenty international artists to withdraw from the festival.

Many other artists have cancelled Israeli concerts and other appearances after moral appeals from Palestinian and international artists and human rights defenders — most recently Buddy Guy, Sam Smith, Rodrigo y Gabriela, Natalie Portman, and Big Thief. Others include Lorde, Shakira, Lauryn Hill, Elvis Costello, and many more.

Thousands of artists worldwide have publicly endorsed BDS and the cultural boycott of Israel, including musicians, DJs, filmmakers and actors, visual artists, black artists, Latin American artists, and countless others across all fields and continents. This is in spite of efforts made by Israeli government-linked lobby groups like the so-called "Creative Community for Peace." These actions of meaningful solidarity are deeply moving to Palestinians.

The Palestinian-led BDS movement aims for the end of Israel's military occupation, to achieve full equality for Palestinians with Israeli citizenship, and to secure the right of return for Palestinian refugees. BDS isn't asking international artists to come and save Palestinians. We are just asking them to, at the very least, not undermine our nonviolent movement.

Beyond this fundamental moral duty is the recognition that powerful international pressure and inspiring solidarity helped to end apartheid in South Africa. It can help to dismantle Israel's decades-old regime of apartheid, occupation, and settler-colonialism against indigenous Palestinians too.

American attitudes are changing

(from the latest Mondoweiss newsletter)

I have noted it in this newsletter dozens of times, but the Democratic Party is out of step with its constituency when it comes to Israel. The vast majority of House Democrats back a resolution proclaiming that Israel is not an apartheid state, but 44% of Democratic voters say it is. Yasmeen Serhan has a piece in Time (the most mainstream of mainstream publications!) rounding up similar data.

“While these Democrats may be in the minority among their congressional peers, their positions are more mainstream than the D.C. establishment might suggest. Polls this year have shown that the gap between the American public and those elected to represent them is widening when it comes to U.S. policy on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, particularly among Democrats,” she writes. “This year, for the first time, an annual Gallup survey found that Democrats’ sympathies lie more with Palestinians than Israelis by a margin of 49% to 38%. The survey found that sympathy toward Palestinians among U.S. adults is at a new high of 31%, while the proportion not favoring either side is at a new low of 15%. That’s a remarkable shift from only a decade ago, when sympathy toward Palestinians stood at just 12%. During that same period, sympathy toward Israelis has declined from 64% to 54%.”

There’s important new polling from Shibley Telhami at the Brookings Institute that we have to throw into the mix when citing these developments. Respondents were asked, “If a two-state solution to the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians were not possible, meaning the West Bank and Gaza had to be under Israeli control indefinitely, which of the following would be closer to your view?”

Almost 75% of Americans, including 80% of Democrats and 64% of Republicans, say they would choose a democratic Israel that isn’t Jewish, over a Jewish Israel without full citizenship and equality for non-Jews living under its authority.

There’s other intriguing data here: 62% of Americans say they don’t know whether anti-Zionism is antisemitism, while 21% said they did not think it was and 15% said they did. Excluding the respondents who don’t know, 56% say attitudes against Zionism are not antisemitic. That includes 64% of Democrats.

Excluding those unfamiliar with Zionism, 49% of respondents said they have neither a positive nor a negative view of it, including 50% of Republicans and 44% of Democrats. Overall, respondents saw Zionism (30%) more negatively than positively (21%). Just 20% of Democrats and 32% of Republicans said they had a positive view of Zionism.

So, the majority of Americans aren't concerned with Israel remaining a Jewish state if the two-state solution is dead. The majority of those who know what anti-Zionism is don't believe it's antisemitic, and Zionism isn't nearly as popular as pro-Israel groups make it out to be.

The human cost of Israel's brutal military occupation and oppression of Palestinians

Figures released by the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Human Affairs (OCHA) show that in the last six months alone at least 174 Palestinians, including 153 civilians and 25 children, have been killed and 6,336 injured by Israeli soldiers and settlers (through to June 24). In contrast, Palestinians have killed 23 Israeli civilians (of which 15 are settlers) including 4 children and injured 143. Every life is precious, and all lives lost are a tragedy; but Israel, its lobby and their stooges in some media would have us believe that Israel is not colonialist, oppressing and racially discriminating against the Palestinian people, and denying the refugees they ethnically cleansed the human right to return to their homeland just because they are not Jews, but a peace loving country defending itself from aggressive bloodthirsty Palestinians who just want to kill Jews.

The figures below released by OCHA, represent the number of Palestinians and Israelis who were killed or injured only in the last fifteen years (since 2008), in the occupied Palestinian territory and Israel in the context of the occupation and conflict.

	Killed	Injured
Palestinians	6,354 (including 1,422 children)	150,388
Israelis	302 (including 25 children)	6,246

The Handala prepares to head to GAZA later this year.

Antony Loewenstein's visit a huge success

We were very pleased with the strong public interest in Antony Loewenstein's whirlwind tour of Aotearoa New Zealand. He was a delight to host, warm and engaging with his audiences and very clearly and patiently explained the issues of Israel's apartheid policies and occupation of Palestine. Many dozens of copies of his book "The Palestine Laboratory" were sold at the meetings.

If you don't have a copy then please ask your local library to get copies in.

Antony was interviewed on Radio New Zealand by Kim Hill (if you missed the interview it is well worth listening to) as well as being interviewed by the Listener here – paywalled unfortunately. You may have to buy a copy to read the excellent interview.

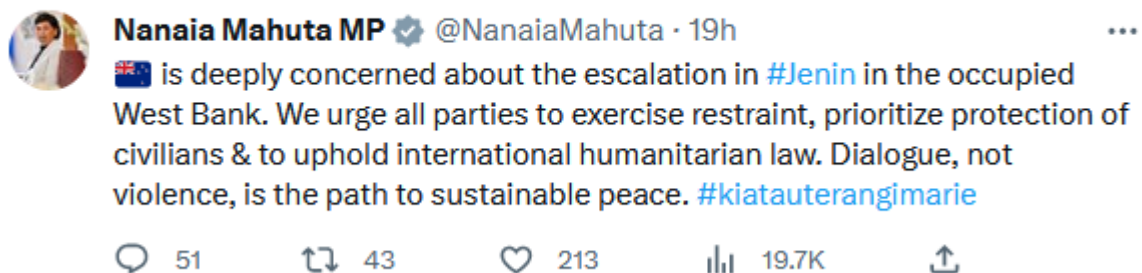

PSNA in the news...

PSNA National Chair John Minto had this opinion piece in the New Zealand Herald on 4 July. It's been reprinted on the Days of Palestine website where it is easier to read.

The ongoing problems with government tweets...

The government has put out several tweets recently – three of them are here and all are seriously problematic:

Anyone reading the third tweet for example would think two groups were in conflict and were equally to blame. In reality Israeli occupation forces invaded Jenin, launching air strikes with rockets and a ground attack which killed numerous Palestinian civilians, including children, as well as Palestinian resistance fighters. In this Palestinian refugee camp in the occupied West Bank Israeli occupation forces destroyed water and electricity infrastructure, dug up roads and bulldozed houses.

And the New Zealand government calls for “all parties to exercise restraint”. Seriously?

This is like asking Ukrainians to “exercise restraint” in the face of Russia’s occupation army or the French resistance to “exercise restraint” when resisting the Nazi occupation of France in the 1940s.

These tweets are once-over-lightly, tick-the-box, diplomatic-speak apologies for Israeli racism, apartheid and brutality. They are softly-softly excuses for Israeli occupation violence, ethnic cleansing, theft of land and war crimes against the Palestinian people.

And then Palestinians are expected to “show restraint”? The government would be better off saying nothing than putting out meaningless messages like this.

Watch out for this man promoting racism and apartheid

We will need some serious money to make our campaign as effective as possible. For example, we will need somewhere in the vicinity of $25,000 to bring speakers to New Zealand over the next year and organise large public meetings to help spread the message.

You can help. Are you able to donate a cup of coffee a month to the campaign? In other words, can you afford to make an automatic payment of $5 per month to support the Palestinian struggle? (If you can afford more that would be great!)

In Occupied Palestine daily newsletter – an invitation to subscribe from Leslie Bravery

Because of mainstream news media complicity, daily headlines and commentary only occasionally ever mention the relentless Israeli violence in Palestine, not even the frequent air strikes!

However, daily news and statistics regarding the violence Palestinians are forced to live under are regularly reported on in the “In Occupied Palestine daily newsletter”, sourced and compiled for easy reading and correlation chiefly from the Palestinian Monitoring Group's daily situation reports.

The “In Occupied Palestine” daily newsletter continues to be circulated, by email, worldwide to subscribers only, as it has been over the last two decades.
